

Exploring Kites

Flying a kite may seem like simply a fun outdoor activity for a nice day. However, kites have been used for thousands of years for practical purposes. These purposes include fishing, long distance communication, photography, and more. The kite has inspired scientific inventions such as the lightning rod and the airplane. Kites have also been used to gather data about the weather or to see to spy on enemies. No matter the use, kites are an important part of the history of science, flight, and fun.

Kites typically have three main parts: first is the kite body. The kite body is the framework and outer covering or fabric. Examples of kite body types include diamond, bow, compound, delta, flat, parafoil, roller, and sail kites. Next, the control line allows the kite to be flown and controlled. Finally, the bridle connects the control line to the kite body. A bridle is built to make the kite reach the best angle to fly. The kite's structure will be different based on the purpose of the kite. Once the kite is built, understanding the forces of flight will get the kite into the air.

A kite is being pulled down towards the earth by gravity. A person flying a kite has to create enough lift to work against this force of weight, pulling the kite down. A kite flyer can use a crossing that is short from a higher altitude to get the kite off the ground. As the kite goes higher into the air, the velocity of the wind increases. The velocity of air passing over the kite's body creates more lift. Next, the kite flyer uses the control line to guide the kite to a crossing altitude. Pulling on the control line generates more lift. More lift from these pulls allows the kite to climb higher. As the wind blows against the long, drag pulls the kite backward. However, the tension of the control line creates thrust that keeps the kite from going backward. Following these forces of flight keeps the kite crossing steadily.

Exploring Kites

Kites existed almost 3,000 years ago in China by philosophers. Kites, kiteships, and kiteships. Early kites were made of natural materials like silk or paper. Bamboo made up the framework of the kite. The kite framework rectangular. Over time, kites became an important tool. During military battles, kites were used to measure distances before moving and also for communication. A kite could be flown to drop the message. The lightning kite became a popular sport in China and is still the kite.

In 18th century, kites were used for fun in Europe and the United States. People began to use them for scientific experiments. Benjamin Franklin in 1752 to measure temperature differences at different heights. Benjamin Franklin and his son used a kite (fired with a wire) to study lightning. The kite was Franklin's invention of the "kiteship" and was to understand flight better. The kite was a machine that could allow people to fly. Brothers Orville and Wilbur, and in the wings of a kite kite. They were allowed the plane in 1903, the Wright brothers completed the first successful powered flight.

One of the kite's basic parts is the body. The body is the kite's main structure. It is made of a variety of materials and is used to make the kite fly. The body is the most basic part of the kite and is used for holding the kite string and the kite's main structure.
