Accountability of Local Authorities in England and Wales, 1831-1935 Volume 2 (RLE Accounting) Hugh Coombs, J. Edwards, 2014-02-24 These books make available material relating to the statutory regulations covering the degree of accountability required from local authorities during the period 1834-1936 The bulk of historical accounting research has focused on the development of financial accounting although in recent years the development of management accounting has attracted more interest In both these areas it has been the accounting practices of the private sector which have received more attention central government in the Middle Ages some attention and local government accounting very little These volumes redress this imbalance in historical investigation both to provide a comparative basis for work on the private sector and to provide an historical perspective for the system of local government accounting currently in use Moody's OTC Unlisted Manual, 1996

rely heavily on debt markets for short medium and long term financing and debt markets and financial intermediaries have significant effects on the real economy Accounting information has various functions in debt markets including inter alia informing pricing decisions and credit ratings determining the allocation of creditor control rights and establishing bank capital adequacy requirements The chapters in this book provide illustrative discussion analysis and evidence on the importance of accounting information in credit markets The first of the four pieces reflects on how a conservative financial reporting system helps firms obtain debt funds and with better conditions and why this is the case The second examines the effects of accounting disclosure on credit ratings of private companies and shows that accounting information is useful for credit rating agencies The two final pieces reflect on how banks should account for credit losses and on how regulators are tackling this issue The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Accounting and Business Research
