

AI: friend or foe?

Artificial intelligence looms large for people worried about job security. More than 25% of workers think AI will help them with certain tasks, and nearly 20% think it will help them on a daily basis.

In all, 43% of workers think having AI on the job will be a good thing. Almost as many (42%) think AI will replace most or some of their job functions.

What's behind this dramatic split?

Among workers who expect to get regular help from AI, a huge share—70%—are confident they have the skills they need to advance their career in the next three years. For workers who think AI will occasionally help them, 65% think they have the skills they need.

What role do you think artificial intelligence will play in your work over the next 2-3 years?

28%

It will replace some of my existing functions

25%

It will occasionally help me with certain tasks

19%

It's going to help me save time on a daily basis

13%

It will replace most of my existing functions

8%

It will have no impact

7%

I do not know enough about artificial intelligence to make a selection

Even among workers who think AI will replace some of their job functions, most (58%) think they have the skills they need.

The trend continues in this direction. Workers who most fear AI have the least confidence in their skill set. Only 45% think they have the skills they'll need.

Among the workers most bullish about AI, more than half say their employer is investing in the skills training they need. As workers grow less confident in their employers' willingness or ability to invest in them, however, they grow more concerned about AI muscling in on their jobs.
