Standard Practice for Hydrostatic Leak Testing¹

This standard is issued under the fixed designation E1003; the number immediately following the designation indicates the year of original adoption or, in the case of revision, the year of last revision. A number in parentheses indicates the year of last approval. A superscript symbol (n) indicates an editorial change since the last revision or approval.

1. Scope

1.1 This practice covers the testing of components for leaks by pressurizing them inside with a liquid.

1.2 This practice can be used on piping, valves, and containers with welded or fitted sections which can be sealed at their ends and which are designed for internal pressure.

1.3 Basic procedures are described based on the type of inspection used. These procedures should be limited to finding leakage indications of 4.5×10^{-7} mol/s (1×10^{-8} Std cm³/s)² or larger.

1.4 Units—The values stated in SI units are to be regarded as standard. The values given in parentheses are mathematical conversions to inch-pound units that are provided for information only and are not considered standard.

1.5 This standard does not purport to address the safety concerns, if any, associated with its use. It is the responsibility of the user of this standard to establish appropriate safety, health, and environmental practices and determine the applicability of regulatory limitations prior to use.

1.6 This international standard was developed in accordance with internationally recognized principles on standardization established in the Decision on Principles for the Development of International Standards, Guides and Recommendations issued by the World Trade Organization Technical Barriers to Trade (TBT) Committee.

This pressure is held for the required time at which point the component is inspected visually to locate leaks or the pressure on the gauge is recorded to determine the components total leakage.

4.2 The two basic procedures are described together with methods for improving their sensitivity.

4.2.1 Pressure Drop Indication—This procedure is used primarily to measure total system leakage.

4.2.2 Visual Inspection for Leakage—This procedure is intended primarily to locate leaks.

4.3 Ultrasonic pretesting for gross leaks is described.
