Sundaram,2006 Derivative Securities and Risk Management in Asia and Australia Sundaram Janakiraman,2007 A Direct Approach to Arbitrage-free Pricing of Credit Derivatives Sanjiv Ranjan Das,1998 This paper develops a framework for modeling risky debt and valuing credit derivatives that is flexible and simple to implement and that is to the maximum extent possible based on observables Our approach is based on expanding the Heath Jarrow Morton term structure model to allow for defaultable debt We do not follow the procedure of implying out the behavior of spreads from assumptions concerning the default process instead working directly with the evolution of spreads We show that risk neutral drifts in the resulting model possess a recursive representation that particularly facilitates implementation and makes it possible to handle path dependence and early exercise features without difficulty The framework permits embedding a variety of specifications for default we present an empirical example of a default structure which provides promising calibration results A Discrete-time Approach to Arbitrage-free Pricing of Credit Derivatives Sanjiv Ranjan Das,Rangarajan K. how the Das and Sundaram model can be extended to price convertible bonds which have a peculiar conversion feature these bonds are convertible not into the stock of the bond issuer but into the stock of a different company We also test the empirical performance of this extended model
