Extravagant Postcolonialism Brian T. May, 2014-11-03 Brian T May argues that contrary to widely held assumptions of postcolonial literary criticism a distinctive subset of postcolonial novels significantly values and scrupulously explores a healthy individuality These extravagant postcolonial works focus less on collective social reality than on the intimate subjectivity of their characters Their authors most of whom received some portion of a canonical western education do not subordinate the ambitions of their fiction to explicit political causes so much as create a cosmopolitan rhetorical focus suitable to their western educated western trained audiences May pursues this argument by scrutinizing novels composed during the thirty year postindependence postcolonial era of Anglophone fiction a period that began with the Nigerian Chinua Achebe's Things Fall Apart and that ended many would say with the Ayatollah Khomeini's 1989 publication of the Rushdie Fatwa May contends that the postcolonial authors under consideration Naipaul Rushdie Achebe Rhys Gordimer and Coetzee inherited modernism and refashioned it His account of their work demonstrates how it reflects and transfigures modernists such as Conrad Eliot Yeats Proust Joyce and Beckett Tracing the influence of humanistic values and charting the ethical and aesthetic significance of individualism May demonstrates that these works of extravagant postcolonialism represent less a departure from than a continuation and evolution of modernism

Echoes of History, Shadowed Identities María José Chivite de León, Maria-José Chivite de León, 2010 This book addresses the recovery of submerged memories loss and trauma in self-avowed intertextual fiction while simultaneously exposing the tensions and untenability of any stable figuration of alterity Otherness thus posits a liminal and largely transversal site of resistance to monological representations of Western identity history and canon which are now displayed inherently crossbred and built on the occulting and alienating of difference With this in view the author carries out a close reading of the works and scholarly statements of J M Coetzee and Marina Warner by taking as the point of departure the intertextualist approaches that most attend to the phenomenon of alterity against the critical discourses of modern representation Fully installed in the revision of canon policies Foe and Indigo re read Eurocentric institutionalised forms of othering at the same time they posit new and suggestive rehearsals of identity languages via literature Intertextual fiction thus turns out to be a powerful instrument to render alterity visible and agential in the discourses of reality Ultimately alterity is enabled to speak and invite social change and ethical awareness without denying the history of its alienation *The Bloomsbury Handbook to J.
