Task Please read the following story and talk about what you could do to help. There are also questions for you to answer. The story will help you to think about what is happening for both the person being bullied and the bully.

Anna is four years old and she loves to dance. She goes to ballet, tap and gymnastics every week.

Anna wins lots of competitions and brings her medals, certificates and trophies into assembly to share with the school. Anna has performed in front of the school during their assemblies and shows.

Anna's friends think she's cool! They have stopped playing with her and they don't invite Anna to parties or for dinner after school.

Anna takes playtime and lessons on the street for all friends. They make her feel sad and she cries about them at home.

Anna has started playing with some of the older girls, Lisa and Maria. Anna's old friends don't like this either – they say that she shouldn't play with them as they are too old for her.

Lisa and Maria have started telling Anna's old friends that they are being unkind. This makes them just as sad as Anna was when the older girls were around.

Alli is six years old. He has a spelling test every Monday morning. Alli sits on a table with two of his best friends and four other children. He sometimes struggles to remember his spellings and feels nervous before he has to do the test.

Alli's friends are good at spelling and he thinks that they are better than him.

This week, the spellings are really tricky and Alli is worried he will not get many of them correct.

Alli does the test but can't concentrate because he is watching his friends writing the spellings down really quickly.

Alli gets three out of ten correct. At playtime, the other children on the table – Abigail, Peter and Karanver – start to call him names and say he is stupid. They are laughing at him and making fun of him.

Alli gets upset and starts crying. Alli's best friend, George, pushes the other children and shouts at them. He is really angry with them because the teacher sees him push
