The Effects of University Students' Psychological Capital on Academic Performance Alex

Mbegu, 2026-01-22 Document from the year 2020 in the subject Psychology Work Business Organisation language English abstract The main objective of this study is to examine the role of positive psychological capital on students' academic performance at Tumaini University Dar es Salaam College TUDARCo. Higher education students' academic performance, well-being, and positive development are one among the least studied subjects in Sub-Saharan Africa. In spite of the fact that Sub-Saharan Africa is home to the largest youth population internationally and has several challenges in youth positive development, unlike the West, it is not majoring in youth population. Yet, it has accounted for most youth development studies. According to Kapinga Amani (2015), who investigated the determinants of academic performance among undergraduate students at Mkwawa University College of Education in Tanzania, they concluded that academic performance in higher learning institutions is partly determined by how well students achieve at the pre-university level, personal determination, and social-economic factors. These findings were similar to a study conducted by Zaituni Shabani in 2013 at Aridhi University, who also concluded that pre-university scores and some socio-economic factors are major determinants for students' academic performance for higher education in Tanzania. However, there is very little attention, if not none, that is being placed on positive psychology being a factor contributing to higher students' academic performance in Tanzania. Most researched factors and those that are generally perceived by the public range from gender, learning resources, learning environments, social and economic challenges, and previous academic achievements.
