

ACCOUNTING 1

Accounting Basics

Accounting is the process of recording, summarizing, and reporting in terms of money the financial transactions and events that in whole or in part determine the financial position of an organization and the changes from period to period.

The primary purpose of accounting is to provide information that is useful in making economic decisions. This information is used by management, investors, creditors, and other interested parties.

Accounting is divided into two main branches: financial accounting and managerial accounting. Financial accounting provides information to external users, while managerial accounting provides information to internal users.

The accounting cycle consists of eight steps:

1. Analyze and record business transactions.
2. Journalize the transactions.
3. Post the journal entries to the ledger.
4. Prepare a trial balance.
5. Adjust the accounts.
6. Prepare financial statements.
7. Close the books.
8. Prepare a post-closing trial balance.

The accounting equation is a fundamental concept in accounting, stating that Assets = Liabilities + Equity. This equation must always be in balance.

The accounting process involves several key steps, including identifying transactions, recording them in the journal, posting to the ledger, and preparing financial statements.

Accounting is essential for the success of any business, as it provides the data needed to make informed decisions and to comply with legal requirements.

Accounting in Business: Financial Statements of an Entity

Financial statements are reports that provide information about the financial performance and position of an entity. They are used by management, investors, creditors, and other interested parties.

The four main financial statements are:

- 1. Balance Sheet: Shows the financial position of an entity at a specific point in time.
- 2. Income Statement: Shows the revenues, expenses, and net income of an entity over a period of time.
- 3. Statement of Retained Earnings: Shows the changes in retained earnings over a period of time.
- 4. Statement of Cash Flows: Shows the cash inflows and outflows of an entity over a period of time.

Financial statements are prepared according to generally accepted accounting principles (GAAP). They provide a clear and concise summary of an entity's financial performance and position.

The balance sheet is a snapshot of an entity's financial position at a specific point in time. It shows the assets, liabilities, and equity of the entity.

The income statement shows the revenues, expenses, and net income of an entity over a period of time. It provides a clear picture of the entity's profitability.

The statement of retained earnings shows the changes in retained earnings over a period of time. It provides information about the entity's ability to generate and retain earnings.

The statement of cash flows shows the cash inflows and outflows of an entity over a period of time. It provides information about the entity's liquidity and solvency.
