Weible,2026-01-02 The Advocacy Coalition Framework ACF a theoretical framework originally formulated to study US public policy has been widely applied to western countries and has advanced policy process scholarship over the past three decades However there are far fewer systematic efforts to apply the Framework's theories in Africa compared to western contexts. This result lessens the contribution of African insights into policy process scholarship and hampers the production of generalizable knowledge. To address this empirical gap, Advocacy Coalitions and Policy Change in Africa poses and answers two interrelated research questions: what are the characteristics of advocacy coalitions and, if appropriate, what are the explanations of policy change? These questions are explored across eight empirical data-driven case studies in different policy domains across the continent's five regions: North Africa, West Africa, East Africa, Central Africa, and Southern Africa, and focus on diverse policy areas including food and nutrition, oil and gas, and climate change. Using original data collected from various sources and analyzed with a variety of techniques, this book evaluates the ACF's theoretical predictions about coalition formation and policy change. It also explores the challenges of applying the ACF in Africa, such as incorporating the role of ethnic, cultural, and tribal identities in coalition formation, taking a broad perspective on political organizations, and improving theories of nascent subsystems. In doing so, Advocacy Coalitions and Policy Change in Africa elucidates the key characteristics of advocacy coalitions and plausible explanations of policy change.

Oxford Studies in African Politics and International Relations is a series for scholars and students working on African politics and International Relations and related disciplines. Volumes concentrate on contemporary developments in African political science, political economy, and International Relations, such as electoral politics, democratization, decentralization, gender, and political representation; the political impact of natural resources; the dynamics and consequences of conflict; comparative political thought; and the nature of the continent's engagement with the East and West. Comparative and mixed methods work is particularly encouraged. Case studies are welcomed but should demonstrate the broader theoretical and empirical implications of the study and its wider relevance to contemporary debates. The focus of the series is on sub-Saharan Africa, although proposals that explain how the region engages with North Africa and other parts of the world are of interest.

Power, Empowerment and Social Change Rosemary McGee, Jethro Pettit, 2019-10-21. This book uncovers how power operates around the world and how it can be resisted or transformed through empowered collective action and social leadership. The stakes have never been higher. Recent years have seen a rapid escalation of inequalities, the rise of new global powers and corporate interests, increasing impunity of human rights violations, suppression of civil society, and a re-shaping of democratic processes by post-truth, populist, and nationalist politics. Rather than looking at power through the lenses of agency or structure alone, this book views power and empowerment as complex and multidimensional societal processes defined by pervasive social norms, conditions, constraints, and opportunities. Bridging theory and practice, the book explores real-world applications using a selection of frameworks, tools, case studies, examples, resources, and reflections from experience to support actors to analyse their positioning and align themselves with progressive social forces. Compiled with social change practitioners, students, and scholars in mind Power Empowerment and Social Change is the perfect volume for anyone involved in politics international development sociology human rights and environmental justice who is looking for fresh insights for transforming power in favour of relatively less powerful people The 3 Keys to Empowerment ,2017 Health & Social Care: Power and Empowerment Pocket Guide Siobhan Maclean,2012 Power and Empowerment Neil Thompson,2007 Empowerment has become a well used term across a wide variety of social work settings that involve dealing with people and their problems But is it a central part of good practice or an empty word And what of power It is a central theme of human services practice but like empowerment is often only loosely examined This book examines both the theory and practice of power and empowerment The Power of Empowerment Jodi L. Anderson,2009
