The European Arc Flash Guide Mike Frain CEng FIET MCMI, 2021-09-20 This book is essential reading for anyone responsible for designing or putting workers to task on or near large power electrical systems This is especially relevant where local health and safety law uses a risk based approach to electrical safety such as in Europe It is based upon a bedrock of risk management methodology using the 4Ps of Predict Prevent Process and Protect to ensure that arc flash hazards are systematically identified analysed and prevented from causing harm Each of the 4Ps are described in detail starting with a quantitative prediction of harm from the arc flash hazard and then a separate chapter on prevention based upon practical measures avoid or minimise harm set against a hierarchy of risk control measures The chapter on process policy and procedures gives advice on a methodical approach to creating rules and ensuring competence Finally the chapter on protection describes as a last resort how personal protective equipment can be selected used and maintained This book is packed with the fruits of the author's vast experience and there is a chapter dedicated to myths and mysteries as well as separate chapters for electrical utilities duty holders service providers contractors legislation and data collection

Demeny, 2012      Approaches to Arc Flash Hazard Mitigation in 600 Volt Power Systems Curtis Thomas Latzo, 2011 ABSTRACT Federal regulations have recognized that arc flash hazards are a critical source of potential injury As a consequence in order to work on some electrical equipment the energy source must be completely shut down However power distribution systems in mission critical facilities such as hospitals and data centers must sometimes remain energized while being maintained In recent years the Arc Flash Hazard Analysis has emerged as a power system tool that informs the qualified technician of the incident energy at the equipment to be maintained and recommends the proper protective equipment to wear Due to codes standards and historically acceptable design methods the Arc Flash Hazard is often higher and more dangerous than necessary This dissertation presents detailed methodology and proposes alternative strategies to be implemented at the design stage of 600 volt facility power distribution systems which will decrease the Arc Flash Hazard Exposure when compared to widely used code acceptable design strategies Software models have been developed for different locations throughout a power system These software model simulations will analyze the Arc Flash Hazard in a system designed with typical mainstream code acceptable methods The model will be changed to show implementation of arc flash mitigation techniques at the system design level The computer simulations after the mitigation techniques will show significant lowering of the Arc Flash Hazard Exposure      Electrical Safety and Arc Flash Handbook Canadian Electricity Forum Inc, Randolph W. Potton,University of North Carolina at Charlotte. Department of Electrical and Computer Engineering,2011 Electrical workers are exposed to arc flash hazards that require equipment be de energized during maintenance periods This contributes to a significant loss of system functionality resulting in costly outages Industry standards and health and safety regulations require the implementation of arc flash analyses on electrical equipment however the standards are often equivocal in terminology and difficult to determine when to appropriately apply Arc flash analyses require the use of various parameters combined in complex calculations These exhaustive procedures make it nearly impossible to perform an accurate arc flash assessment in the field Qualified field personnel need to understand the contributing factors of an arc flash and available retrofit methods for reducing the associated incident energy This thesis investigates the underlying concepts of an arc flash and presents a concise method for performing the analysis on a desired system using the Cooper Bussmann Short Circuit Point to Point method as well as the IEEE 1584 standard An electrical system representative of a small industrial plant is modeled and simulated using Operation Technology Incorporated s ETAP Electrical Transient Analysis Program software To aid in the reduction of an arc flash s total incident energy several sensitive arc flash parameters are defined and with the use of Matlab modeled and examined with the intention of allowing field personnel to quickly and safely recognize methods for arc flash mitigation This thesis can inform field personnel entry level engineers and engineering students of the concepts and sensitive parameters associated with arc flash analyses
