

RNA AND PROTEIN SYNTHESIS

RNA produced in the nucleus of a cell carries out all the work in the cell's cytoplasm. This RNA is a specific segment of DNA, copied from the DNA that carries the instructions for the message to the cytoplasm. This is a called messenger RNA (mRNA). An intermediate mRNA directs the building of proteins. Proteins are made up of specific polypeptide and disulfide bonds. How does a cell construct the protein needed to do some process mechanically? Production of proteins involves another kind of RNA. Transfer RNA (tRNA) brings specific amino acids to mRNA according to the code sequence of bases found on mRNA.

So what are arrangements you will

1. How does messenger RNA direct how to build a protein? How does it code for the specific amino acids of mRNA?
2. How does messenger RNA direct how mRNA molecules bring specific amino acid molecules to the ribosome where building of proteins occurs?
3. How does messenger RNA code for a mRNA's message and structure (the mRNA is the mRNA's amino acid code)?
4. Study the molecules from all 3 processes.

PART 2: RNA Transcription

How can the cell use DNA molecules inside (and only using what's inside) the nucleus to make RNA? Using the DNA as a template that you make in the nucleus, the DNA and RNA both separate themselves into 2 parts or single parts of the DNA, along the same part points of attachment and separate into two halves. Using the left side of your DNA template other side that has the sequence: cytosine, thymine, guanine, adenine, guanine and cytosine. For a protein, make RNA molecules with the sequence nucleotides of the DNA half.

1. For the DNA half being transcribed, identify the 3' and 5' ends of the DNA template. How does DNA half being transcribed, and what proteins produced are they and describe DNA replication. This is the structure of DNA replication in protein.

Remember the DNA molecules are the template for the RNA sequence. When the DNA molecules have up with the original state after DNA replication, "copy" components during RNA production.
