

General Relativity: Robertson Solutions

Starting from the most general spherically symmetric solution to the Einstein field equations, we will derive the Robertson-Walker metric. This metric is the most general metric for a homogeneous and isotropic universe. It is the basis for the Friedmann-Lemaître-Robertson-Walker (FLRW) model of the universe.

We will then discuss the implications of this metric for cosmology, including the expansion of the universe and the Big Bang. We will also discuss the role of dark matter and dark energy in the evolution of the universe.

Robertson-Walker Metric
The Robertson-Walker metric is a solution to the Einstein field equations that describes a homogeneous and isotropic universe. It is the most general metric for such a universe. The metric is given by:
$$ds^2 = -c^2 dt^2 + a(t)^2 \left[\frac{dr^2}{1 - kr^2} + r^2 d\Omega^2 \right]$$ where t is the cosmic time, r is the radial coordinate, $a(t)$ is the scale factor, and k is the curvature constant. The metric is spherically symmetric and homogeneous. The scale factor $a(t)$ describes the expansion of the universe. The curvature constant k can be positive, zero, or negative, corresponding to spherical, flat, or hyperbolic geometry, respectively.
