What are the differences between Clustered and Unclustered Lookup?

The differences are explained in the below table:

Clustered Lookup	Unclustered Lookup
Clustered Lookup performs an iterative scan across the data blocks to find the position.	Unclustered Lookup performs a single scan from the start to the end of the data blocks to find the position.
Clustered Lookup can use more systems and more nodes.	Unclustered Lookup needs a single node to perform.
Clustered Lookup can tolerate more data loss because of its iterative scan.	Unclustered Lookup can tolerate only one data loss because of its single scan.
Clustered Lookup handles all storage systems.	Unclustered Lookup handles only the storage systems that support the distributed and the sequential.
Supports multi-valued column values (i.e. lists for column value based conditions are not needed).	Does not support multi-valued column values.

What is meant by active and passive transformation?

Active transformation is the one that writes the row of the table to the table.

1. Change the content of each column transformed input and output. Example: Row transformation.
2. Change the structure of the data by adding, deleting or renaming columns. Example: Row transformation.
3. Change the row type. Example: Update column to string because it has the row type string, update it to row.
