Confucianism as a World Religion Anna Sun, 2015-08-11 Is Confucianism a religion If so why do most Chinese think it isn't From ancient Confucian temples to nineteenth century archives to the testimony of people interviewed by the author throughout China over a period of more than a decade this book traces the birth and growth of the idea of Confucianism as a world religion The book begins at Oxford in the late nineteenth century when Friedrich Max Müller and James Legge classified Confucianism as a world religion in the new discourse of world religions and the emerging discipline of comparative religion Anna Sun shows how that decisive moment continues to influence the understanding of Confucianism in the contemporary world not only in the West but also in China where the politics of Confucianism has become important to the present regime in a time of transition Contested histories of Confucianism are vital signs of social and political change Sun also examines the revival of Confucianism in contemporary China and the social significance of the ritual practice of Confucian temples While the Chinese government turns to Confucianism to justify its political agenda Confucian activists have started a movement to turn Confucianism into a religion Confucianism as a world religion might have begun as a scholarly construction but are we witnessing its transformation into a social and political reality With historical analysis extensive research and thoughtful reflection Confucianism as a World Religion will engage all those interested in religion and global politics at the beginning of the Chinese century Ninian

The Varieties of Religious Experience William James, 1902 Christianity and the World Religions Hans Küng, 1986 There is a significant connection between ecumenism and world peace Anyone who feels a sense of obligation toward the world community who takes seriously the fragility of all human arrangements who has glimpsed the possibilities of technical and human error must know what is at stake here He must know that the threat to peace and the need to regulate it have long since burst through the dimensions of the specific regional conflict and have become global political problems on which the survival of us all depends The most fanatical the cruelest political struggles are those that have been colored inspired and legitimized by religion To say this is not to reduce all political conflicts to religious ones but to take seriously the fact that religions share in the responsibility for bringing peace to our torn and warring world
