Allure of the Incomplete, Imperfect, and Impermanent Rumiko Handa,2014-12-17 Architects have long operated based on the assumption that a building is complete once construction has finished Striving to create a perfect building they wish for it to stay in its original state indefinitely viewing any subsequent alterations as unintended effects or the results of degeneration The ideal is for a piece of architecture to remain permanently perfect and complete This contrasts sharply with reality where changes take place as people move in requirements change events happen and building materials are subject to wear and tear Rumiko Handa argues it is time to correct this imbalance Using examples ranging from the Roman Coliseum to Japanese tea rooms she draws attention to an area that is usually ignored the allure of incomplete imperfect and impermanent architecture By focusing on what happens to buildings after they are complete she shows that the afterlife is in fact the very life of a building However the book goes beyond theoretical debate Addressing professionals as well as architecture students and educators it persuades architects of the necessity to anticipate possible future changes and to incorporate these into their original designs

Captured Landscape Kate Baker,2018-03-20 The enclosed garden or hortus conclusus is a place where architecture and landscape come together It has a long and varied history ranging from the early paradise garden and cloister the botanic garden and giardini segreto the kitchen garden and as a stage for social display The enclosed garden has continued to develop into its many modern forms the city retreat the redemptive garden the deconstructed building As awareness of climate change becomes increasingly important the enclosed garden which can mediate so effectively between interior and exterior provides opportunities for sustainable design and closer contact with the natural landscape By its nature it is ambiguous Is it an outdoor room or captured landscape is it architecture or garden Kate Baker discusses the continuing relevance of the typology of the enclosed garden to contemporary architects by exploring influential historical examples and the concepts they generate alongside some of the best of contemporary designs brought to life with vivid photography and detailed drawings taken primarily from Britain the Mediterranean Japan and North and South America She argues that understanding the potential of the enclosed garden requires us to think of it as both a design and an experience Captured Landscape provides a broad range of information and design possibilities for students of architectural and landscape design practising architects landscape designers and horticulturalists and will also appeal to a wider audience of all those who are interested in garden design This second edition of Captured Landscape is enriched with new case studies throughout the book The scope has now been broadened to include an entirely new chapter concerning the urban condition with detailed discussions on issues of ecology sustainability economy of means well being and the social pressures of contemporary city life
