

Introduction to International Law

Robert Beckman and Dagmar Butte

A. PURPOSE OF THIS DOCUMENT

This document is intended to provide students an overview of international law and the structure of the international legal system. In many cases it oversimplifies the law by summarizing key principles in less than one page in order to provide the student with an overview that will enhance further study of the topic.

B. DEFINITION OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

International Law consists of the rules and principles of general application dealing with the conduct of States and of international organizations in their international relations with one another and with private individuals, minority groups and transnational companies.

C. INTERNATIONAL LEGAL PERSONALITY

International legal personality refers to the entities or legal persons that can have rights and obligations under international law.

1. States

A State has the following characteristics: (1) a permanent population; (2) a defined territory; (3) a government; and (4) the capacity to enter into relations with other States. Some writers also argue that a State must be fully independent and be recognized as a State by other States. The international legal system is a horizontal system dominated by States which are, in principle, considered sovereign and equal. International law is predominately made and implemented by States. Only States can have sovereignty over territory. Only States can become members of the United Nations and other international organizations. Only States have access to the International Court of Justice. . .

2. International Organizations

International Organizations are established by States through international agreements and their powers are limited to those conferred on them in their constituent document. International organizations have a limited degree of international personality, especially vis-à-vis member States. They can enter into international agreements and their representatives have certain privileges and immunities. The constituent document may also provide that member States are legally bound to comply with decisions on particular matters. . .

Toward a New Framework for Peaceful Settlement of China's Territorial and Boundary Disputes Junwu Pan, 2009 As China becomes more integrated in global economic and political systems it has become inevitable that it engages fully and actively in the international legal system Notably missing in China's international engagement is its participation in international institutions on third party settlement of disputes including territorial and boundary disputes This work argues that contrary to conventional understanding much could be gained by China if it were to have a more positive attitude towards third party settlement of its territorial and boundary disputes This volume examines both the problems and opportunities China is confronting within the changing international context and offers new frameworks for settlement of China's major territorial and boundary disputes

Ocean Governance and Conflict in the East and South China Sea Christian Schultheiss, 2025-10-01 This book tells the story of the negotiations between China Japan Taiwan the Philippines Vietnam and other Southeast Asian countries about the East and South China Sea disputes Tapping into formerly classified and newly available primary sources the book meticulously tracks these negotiations and their sudden U turns It is a story about the promises and perils of cooperation as much about pragmatic gradual and surprisingly resilient approaches to conflict resolution and ocean governance as it is about the expansion of states bargaining power through institutions The book hinges on the question of when and why disputing parties reach agreement on joint oil and gas development fisheries and codes of conduct and when and why negotiations end in impasse It is the first comprehensive and theoretically informed study of decades long dispute settlement efforts in a central region of the Indo Pacific where the expansion of China challenges the law of the sea and regional security

Maritime Disputes and International Law Constantinos Yiallourides, 2019-05-20 The settlement of the maritime boundary disputes between China and Japan in the East China Sea and between Greece and Turkey in the Aegean Sea is politically deadlocked While diplomatic settlement efforts have been ongoing for the past several decades neither side in each case appears prepared to back down from its respective maritime and territorial claims Several incidents at sea have occurred prompting diplomatic protests military standoffs even exchange of fire The existing status quo is inherently unstable and does not favour either side to the extent that it holds hostage the multiple benefits that could otherwise be generated from the exploitation of the seabed energy and mineral resources in the disputed waters creating an urgent need for a meaningful discussion on finding a practical way forward This monograph undertakes a comprehensive analysis of these disputes based on the rules and principles of international law critically evaluating possible institutional designs of inter State cooperation over seabed activities in disputed maritime areas and makes recommendations for the prospect of realising joint development regimes in the East China Sea and the Aegean to coordinate the exploration for and exploitation of resources without having resorted previously to boundary delimitation settlement
