Façades Ulrich Knaack, 2007-01-01 Facades determine the appearance of a building Thus they have a very important role to play in architecture At the same time the building envelope has important functions to fulfill including lighting weatherproofing thermal isolation load distribution and sound insulation to name only the most important In the last fifteen years facades have become significantly more complex For example intelligent climate active facades use self regulating systems to respond to changing light and weather conditions This book demonstrates the principles of facade construction Guidelines are suggested for good detailing The installation procedures are described for the most common materials glass wood steel concrete and aluminum Numerous drawings made specially for the book explain the principles of the individual types of facade which are then illustrated with built examples

Integral Facade Construction Tillmann Klein, TU Delft, Architecture and the Built Environment, 2013-06-03 Integral Facade Construction focuses on the future development of the curtain wall While the requirements on facades have slowly increased over the last decades the curtain wall has evolved from craftsmanship oriented constructions to highly developed facade systems But its constructional principle is still the same Simplified it can be described as a two dimensional stick system with infill With the latest requirements of almost energy neutral buildings faster building processes and increasing technicalisation of the building envelope this constructional principle is reaching its limits The curtain wall system has reached a state of maturity and it needs a new approach to guaranty that this successful product will meet the challenges of the future
