Problems with Dress Code in Schools

"I felt violated in front of my peers. I was called out, and it was taking time from my education" ("Shame: A Documentary"). "It made me feel embarrassed and ashamed" ("Shame: A Documentary"). These are quotes from students at Woodford County High School who created a documentary called Shame to share their opinions on how harmful dress codes can be on a person's emotions. There must no longer be a dress code in schools. The codes are a problem because they do not protect children. Not only that, but also boys are not allowed to dress in female attire, the dress codes are inconsistent, and girls are targeted and sexualized. It is common for school administrators and teachers to believe if there is not a dress code, students will come to school without enough clothing, and/or they will be a distraction to other students. What these administrators do not understand is these problems would not exist if students were able to adjust to no longer "shut-shaming" and judging other students based solely on their attire. The most shocking, yet exceptional solution to these problems is to diminish the dress code all together.

Dress codes do absolutely nothing to protect children and their learning environment. The rules set a "social norm" and cause students to lose their self expression and individuality. In Colorado a third-grader was suspended after shaving her head to show support for a friend battling cancer because she had violated her school's dress code banning shaved heads (Hoewel, 1). In 2013, 5-year-old Cooper Barton from Oklahoma City was told to turn his University of

Student Dress Codes and Uniforms. Research Brief Howard Johnston, 2009

According to an Education Commission of the States Policy Report research on the effects of dress code and school uniform policies is inconclusive and mixed Some researchers find positive effects others claim no effects or only perceived effects While no state has legislatively mandated the wearing of school uniforms 28 states and the District of Columbia have enacted laws addressing school attire ERIC Clearinghouse on Educational Management Fall 2002 Recent challenges have focused on the chilling effect that dress codes have on free speech e.g. the expression of religious or political ideas or the burdens that new dress requirements particularly uniforms place on poor parents who cannot afford to bring their children into compliance Also some parents and legal authorities claim that when students either are sent home or placed in isolation because of dress code violations it has a negative effect on their educational opportunity and ultimate performance
