Performance Measurement in Non-Profit Organizations Patrizia Gazzola, Stefano Amelio, 2022-09-26 Performance Measurement in Non Profit Organizations The Road to Integrated Reporting addresses the issue of performance measurement in nonprofit companies with the aim of defining a system of useful measures to understand manage and improve the performance of such companies by employing systems theory to examine their conditions of existence and manifestations of life From the proposed company model follows that the system of performance measures should make it possible to keep under control both the productive transformation with the physical technical efficiency indicators and the economic transformation with the economic efficiency indicators and the financial transformation with the financial efficiency indicators and finally the managerial transformation with the effectiveness indicators taking into account the degree of satisfaction of the expectations of the main categories of company stakeholders Readers will understand that economic analysis alone is not sufficient to assess the performance of such organizations but it is necessary to unite it with the analysis of sustainability dimensions It would therefore be appropriate to draw up an integrated report that combines the economic and financial dimensions with the pillars of sustainability as in the case of companies in the second sector There is a gap in the literature in this area that this book aims to fill making it a valuable resource to researchers academics and advanced students interested in performance evaluation of NPOs

Managing Nonprofit Organizations Mary Tschirhart, Wolfgang Bielefeld, 2012-07-06

MANAGING NONPROFIT ORGANIZATIONS This essential resource offers an overall understanding of nonprofits based on both the academic literature and practitioner experience. It shows how to lead, manage, govern, and structure effective and ethical nonprofit organizations. Managing Nonprofit Organizations reveals what it takes to be entrepreneurial and collaborative, formulate successful strategies, assess performance, manage change, acquire resources, be a responsible financial steward, and design and implement solid marketing and communication plans. Managing Nonprofit Organizations is the only introductory text on this subject that manages to do three critical things equally well: It is comprehensive, covering all the key topics leaders of NPOs need to know about; it is practical, providing lots of examples, case incidents, and experiential exercises that connect the content to the real world; and it is the best of all and most unique compared to others, as its research-based drawing on the latest and best empirical studies that look into what works and doesn't work in the world of nonprofit management.

Vic Murray, professor, School of Public Administration, University of Victoria. This book is a rarity: a text that can be used both as the focus for academic study and as a source of stimulating ideas for those practitioners who want to explore theories about management and how they can be applied so they can do a better job.

Tschirhart and Bielefeld have explained all aspects of nonprofit management and leadership in a way that will stimulate as well as inform.

Richard Brewster, executive director, National Center on Nonprofit Enterprise, Virginia Tech University. Managing Nonprofit Organizations presents a comprehensive treatment of this important topic. The book satisfies the competencies and curriculum guidelines developed by NASPAA and by NACC and would be ideal for instruction. The book maintains its commitment to informing management and leadership throughout the nonprofit sector.

Jeffrey L. Brudney, Albert A. Levin Chair of Urban Studies and Public Service, Cleveland State University. This is an important book written by two of the leading scholars in the nonprofit studies field. Nonprofit managers, board members, funders, educators, and others will find Managing Nonprofit Organizations extremely valuable.

Michael O'Neill, professor of nonprofit management, University of San Francisco. Here is the book that my students have been asking for: just the right mix of theory, presentation, research findings, and practical suggestions to serve the thoughtful nonprofit management practitioner. It will inform, instruct, and ultimately inspire.

Rikki Abzug, professor of management, Anisfield School of Business, Ramapo College.

Inventing the Nonprofit Sector and Other Essays on Philanthropy, Voluntarism, and Nonprofit Organizations

Peter Dobkin Hall, 1992. Philanthropy and voluntarism are among the most familiar and least understood of American institutions. The oldest American nonprofit corporation, Harvard College, dates from 1636, but most of the million or so nonprofits currently in existence were established after 1960. Although perceived as quintessentially American, these organized efforts to entrust public tasks to private agencies have from colonial times been the subject of fierce controversy. In Inventing the Nonprofit Sector and Other Essays on Philanthropy, Voluntarism, and Nonprofit Organizations, cultural historian

Peter Dobkin Hall describes and analyses the development of America's fastest growing institutional sector. Addressing the historical, religious, cultural, managerial, and public policy dimensions of philanthropy and voluntarism, Hall examines the public perception of nonprofits, their structure, and the consequences of that structure for management and public policy. He also considers the difficulty of producing objective scholarship about an industry that is both the chief initiator of research and its major consumer. The continuing debate over philanthropy and voluntarism, Hall argues, expresses central tensions in democratic life. In our own time, these involve not only well-publicized controversies over public policy with regard to taxation, regulation, and social welfare, but also less visible, but no less significant, struggles within private organizations as they seek to define and serve public needs.
