Design for the Changing Educational Landscape Andrew Harrison, Les Hutton, 2013-10-15 The whole landscape of space use is undergoing a radical transformation In the workplace a period of unprecedented change has created a mix of responses with one overriding outcome observable worldwide the rise of distributed space In the learning environment the social political economic and technological changes responsible for this shift have been further compounded by constantly developing theories of learning and teaching and a wide acceptance of the importance of learning as the core of the community resulting in the blending of all aspects of learning into one seamless experience This book attempts to look at all the forces driving the provision and pedagogic performance of the many spaces real and virtual that now accommodate the experience of learning and provide pointers towards the creation and design of learning centred communities Part 1 looks at the entire learning universe as it now stands tracks the way in which its constituent parts came to occupy their role assesses how they have responded to a complex of drivers and gauges their success in dealing with renewed pressures to perform It shows that what is required is innovation within the spaces and integration between them Part 2 finds many examples of innovation in evidence across the world in schools the higher and further education campus and in business and cultural spaces but an almost total absence of integration Part 3 offers a model that redefines the learning landscape in terms of learning outcomes mapping spatial requirements and activities into a detailed mechanism that will achieve the best outcome at the most appropriate scale By encouraging stakeholders to creating an events based rather than space based identity the book hopes to point the way to a fully integrated learning landscape a learning community

What Comes after Entanglement? Eva Haifa Giraud, 2019-10-18 By foregrounding the ways that human existence is bound together with the lives of other entities contemporary cultural theorists have sought to move beyond an anthropocentric worldview Yet as Eva Haifa Giraud contends in What Comes after Entanglement for all their conceptual power in implicating humans in ecologically damaging practices these theories can undermine scope for political action Drawing inspiration from activist projects between the 1980s and the present that range from anticapitalist media experiments and vegan food activism to social media campaigns against animal research Giraud explores possibilities for action while fleshing out the tensions between theory and practice Rather than an activist ethics based solely on relationality and entanglement Giraud calls for what she describes as an ethics of exclusion which would attend to the entities practices and ways of being that are foreclosed when other entangled realities are realized Such an ethics of exclusion emphasizes foreclosures in the context of human entanglement in order to foster the conditions for people to create meaningful political change

Culture after the Hurricanes M. B. Hackler, 2011-04-29 Contributions by Jay D Edwards, Keagan LeJeune, Benjamin Morris, Jeffrey Schwartz, Peter G Stillman, Adelaide H Villmoare and W D Wilkerson. Rebuilding in Louisiana and Mississippi after Hurricanes Katrina and Rita presented some very thorny issues. Certain cultural projects benefited from immediate attention and funding while others with equal cases for assistance but with less attraction to future tourist dollars languished. New Orleans and its surroundings contain a diverse mixture of Native Americans, African Americans, Creoles, Cajuns, Islanders with roots in the Canary Islands and the descendants of Italian, Irish, English, Croatian and German immigrants among others. Since 2005 much is now different for the people of the Gulf Coast and much more stands to change as governments, national and international nonprofit organizations, churches and community groups determine how and even where life will continue. This collection elucidates how this process occurs and seeks to understand the cultures that may be saved through assistance or may be allowed to fade away through neglect. Essays in Culture after the Hurricanes examine the ways in which a wide variety of stakeholders, community activists, elected officials, artists and policy administrators describe, quantify and understand the unique assets of the region. Contributors question the process of cultural planning by analyzing the language employed in decision making. They attempt to navigate between rhetoric and the actual experience of ordinary citizens, examining the long term implications for those who call the Gulf Coast home.
