Smart Villages Robert Krueger, Hermine Vedogbeton, Mustapha Fofana, Wole Soboyejo, 2023-12-18 This book asserts that the goal of smart villages should shift from one of extraction to one of community value creation To begin this conversation we examine the smart village discourse debates in design theory non western traditions of innovation and sustainable development Through case studies of smart village co design we offer a way forward This book is relevant for engineers social scientists and development practitioners The book will be of special interest to those seeking to expand their inquiry into the role of science and technology in low and middle income countries Artificial Intelligence and Industrial Applications Tawfik Masrour, Ibtissam El Hassani, Anass Cherrafi, 2020-07-18 This book gathers selected papers from Artificial Intelligence and Industrial Applications A2IA 2020 the first installment of an annual international conference organized by ENSAM Meknes at Moulay Ismail University Morocco The 29 papers presented here were carefully reviewed and selected from 141 submissions by an international scientific committee They address various aspects of artificial intelligence such as digital twin multiagent systems deep learning image processing and analysis control prediction modeling optimization and design as well as AI applications in industry health energy agriculture and education The book is intended for AI experts offering them a valuable overview and global outlook for the future and highlights a wealth of innovative ideas and recent important advances in AI applications both of a foundational and practical nature It will also appeal to non experts who are curious about this timely and important subject Stirling Engine Design and Feasibility for Automotive Use M. J. Collie, 1979 Stirling Engine Project Austin Eilering, Ortega. Roland, Douglas Yanagihara, 2020 For this year's Senior Project Design we will be inheriting last year's Alpha Stirling Engine with the intention of improving upon the design to have a functional prototype With that this will incorporate several design changes and different testing methods From those changes this will provide us with a baseline as far as the validity of analysis for this design With further analysis of last year's engine we noticed that it was faulty due to wrong assumptions and modelling Last year's design team modelled the engine as a single piston single cylinder engine With the two pre existing piston cylinders on their past design we believe it wasn't appropriate for their design choice This year we will pursue a different design provided by a text written by James R Senft This text will provide us with engineering drawings for a complete assembly on this type of air engine Our main objective this year is to focus less on the dynamic analysis of Stirling Engines but more on the potential applications it can be used in This report will contain our iterative process of our final design and a brief analysis on the importance of scaling these engines in size Stirling Dish System Performance Prediction Model Paul R. thermodynamic concepts are explained in these notes. The text concerns two engine types: the Stirling, including the Ringbom model which is the best known, and the Manson, sometimes called the Ruppel engine. There are similarities between the two theoretical cycles used in each; in one respect, however, they differ considerably: the cycle used in a Stirling engine produces mechanical energy by utilizing a gas that is hermetically sealed inside; in fact, the seal is not perfect, so some inevitable minor losses occur. In contrast, the Manson is not a closed cycle. The engine that uses the Stirling cycle can be made in three configurations, generally called Alfa, Beta, and Gamma, in addition to a fourth, the Ringbom type, in which the displacer is free, i.e., not connected to the crank mechanism. An important consideration for the Beta and Gamma types is the optimization of output power by establishing the correct ratio between the volume of the displacer and the volume of the working cylinder, factoring different temperatures. Efficiency is calculated and examined. The book begins with the Gamma type, which is the easiest to understand, then the remaining Alfa, Beta, and Ringbom types, the latter a free piston engine, and concludes with the Manson type.
