

Accounting cycle 1-8

- 1. Identify the accounts affected by the transaction.
- 2. Determine the debit and credit amounts for each account.

3. Record the journal entry in the journal. The journal entry should include the date, a brief description of the transaction, and the debit and credit amounts for each account.

4. Post the journal entry to the ledger. The ledger is a collection of accounts, each with its own T-account. The debit and credit amounts from the journal entry are posted to the appropriate T-accounts.

5. Calculate the ending balances for each account. The ending balance for each account is calculated by adding the debit and credit amounts and subtracting the beginning balance.

6. Prepare the trial balance. The trial balance is a statement that lists the ending balances for all accounts and verifies that the total debits equal the total credits.

7. Prepare the financial statements. The financial statements are prepared based on the ending balances from the trial balance.

8. Close the temporary accounts to the permanent accounts.

9. Prepare the closing journal entries. The closing journal entries are used to transfer the balances from the temporary accounts to the permanent accounts.

10. Prepare the post-closing trial balance. The post-closing trial balance is prepared after the closing entries and verifies that the total debits equal the total credits.

11. Prepare the financial statements for the next period. The financial statements are prepared based on the ending balances from the post-closing trial balance.

12. Prepare the closing journal entries for the next period. The closing journal entries are used to transfer the balances from the temporary accounts to the permanent accounts.

13. Prepare the post-closing trial balance for the next period. The post-closing trial balance is prepared after the closing entries and verifies that the total debits equal the total credits.

14. Prepare the financial statements for the next period. The financial statements are prepared based on the ending balances from the post-closing trial balance.

15. Prepare the closing journal entries for the next period. The closing journal entries are used to transfer the balances from the temporary accounts to the permanent accounts.
