I wasn't a very motivated student when I was younger, so I failed my exams in 2009 and had to retake them the following summer. I'd already decided I wanted to take a gap year then go to business school, so this time I completed all the coursework and revised thoroughly. I passed easily. I spent a year abroad as an assistant in a secondary school and then went to business school - I'd already applied and successfully attended an interview before revising my exams.

In my second year as an undergraduate, I spent a semester as an intern at Hewlett Packard, which was very rewarding. In fact, after I graduated into a job at HP after I graduated the following June. They encouraged me to do a Master's degree by correspondence - I just have to finish writing a dissertation. I need a break now, but I may take a sabbatical to study for an MBA in a few years' time.

When I left school I wasn't sure what to do next. I had applied for a place at university, but while I was revising for my exams I had already decided that I didn't feel ready for university. I had read a lot about East Africa, and one day when I was watching a TV documentary about Ethiopia, I suddenly knew that that was where I was going. In fact it was while I was working with an NGO in Ethiopia that I became interested in business.

Chapter 3 Answers Pworks:

Bootstrapping Democracy Gianpaolo Baiocchi, Patrick Heller, Marcelo Silva, 2011-06-01 Despite increasing interest in how involvement in local government can improve governance and lead to civic renewal questions remain about participation's real impact This book investigates participatory budgeting a mainstay now of World Bank UNDP and USAID development programs to ask whether its reforms truly make a difference in deepening democracy and empowering civil society Looking closely at eight cities in Brazil comparing those that carried out participatory budgeting reforms between 1997 and 2000 with those that did not the authors examine whether and how institutional reforms take effect Bootstrapping Democracy highlights the importance of local level innovations and democratic advances charting a middle path between those who theorize that globalization hollows out democracy and those who celebrate globalization as a means of fostering democratic values Uncovering the state's role in creating an associational environment it reveals the contradictory ways institutional reforms shape the democratic capabilities of civil society and how outcomes are conditioned by relations between the state and civil society

Creating Meaningful Museum Experiences for K-12 Audiences

Tara Young, 2021-10-30 Creating Meaningful Museum Experiences for K-12 Audiences: How to Connect with Teachers and Engage Students is the first book in more than a decade to provide a comprehensive look at best practices in working with this crucial segment of museum visitors. With more than 40 contributors from art, history, science, natural history, and specialty museums across the country, the book asks probing questions about museum-school relationships, suggests new paradigms, and offers creative approaches. Fully up to date with current issues relevant to museums working with schools, including anti-racist teaching approaches and pivoting to virtual programming during the pandemic, this book is essential for both established and emerging museum educators to ensure they are current on best practices in the field. The book features four parts: Setting the Stage looks at how museums establish and finance K-12 programs and how to engage with the youngest audiences; Building Blocks considers the core elements of successful K-12 programming, including mission alignment, educator recruitment and training, working with teacher advisory boards, and anti-racist teaching practices; Questions and New Paradigms presents case studies in which practitioners reconsider established approaches to museums working with schools and engage in iterative processes to update and improve them, from evaluating K-12 museum programs to diversifying program content to prioritizing virtual programming; Solutions and Innovative Models offers examples of programs that have been reimaged for the current landscape of museum-school collaborations, including practicing self-care for teachers and museum educators, investing in extended school relationships over one-time visits, and highlighting the stories of enslaved people who lived at historic sites.

Digital Literacies Mark Pegrum, Nicky Hockly, Gavin Dudeney, 2014-06-03 Dramatic shifts in our communication landscape have made it crucial for language teaching to go beyond print literacy and encompass the digital literacies which are increasingly central to learners' personal, social, educational, and professional lives. By situating these digital literacies within a clear theoretical framework, this book provides educators and students alike with not just the background for a deeper understanding of these key 21st-century skills but also the rationale for integrating these skills into classroom practice. This is the first methodology book to address not just why but also how to teach digital literacies in the English language classroom. This book provides a theoretical framework through which to categorise and prioritise digital literacies. Practical classroom activities to help learners and teachers develop digital literacies in tandem with key language skills. A thorough analysis of the pedagogical implications of developing digital literacies in teaching practice. A consideration of exactly how to integrate digital literacies into the English language syllabus. Suggestions for teachers on how to continue their own professional development through PLNs (Personal Learning Networks) and how to access teacher development opportunities online. This book is ideal for English language teachers and learners of all age groups and levels, academics and students researching digital literacies, and anyone looking to expand their understanding of digital literacies within a teaching framework.
