A Spatial Analysis Of Population Growth And Urbanization:

Proceedings of The 2nd International Conference on Climate Change and Ocean Renewable Energy Soufiane Haddout, K.L. Priya, Antonio Mubango Hogueane, 2024-10-03 Renewable energy is energy that is collected from renewable resources that are naturally replenished on a human timescale. It includes sources such as sunlight, tides, waves, wind, rain, and geothermal heat. According to BP's 2018 Energy Outlook, renewable energy will be the fastest growing source of energy, increasing fivefold by 2040, thus providing around 14% of global primary energy at this future point in time. On the other hand, climate change is bringing about rising temperatures, which has significant negative impacts on humans and the environment, and transitioning to renewable energy sources such as biofuels can help meet this challenge. Transitioning to renewable energy and reducing reliance on fossil fuels is one way to help slow down the effects of climate change. While renewables used to be a more expensive option, new clean energy technologies are lowering costs and helping to move economies away from fossil fuels.

Energy, Economy, and Climate Interactions: Challenges and Opportunities Chuanbao Wu, Lirong Liu, Xander Wang, 2023-11-02 Naturbanization Maria Jose Prados Velasco, 2008-11-24 As the growth of the world's population requires the continued search for residential space, the urbanization of natural lands is an inevitable process, but that process does not have to be one that is accomplished without regard for environmental quality. This book presents the unique perspective of naturbanization, the urbanization of protected areas.

Dynamics of Urbanization Atmaram Dattu Mulik, 1989 Urban Development in Asia and Africa Yuji Murayama, Courage Kamusoko, Akio Yamashita, Ronald C. Estoque, 2017-03-29 This book examines the urban growth trends and patterns of various rapidly growing metropolitan regions in developing Asian and African nations from the perspective of geography. State-of-the-art geospatial tools and techniques, including geographic information system science and remote sensing, were used to facilitate the analysis. In addition to the empirical results, the methodological approaches employed and discussed in this book showcase the potential of geospatial analysis, e.g., land change modeling, for improving our understanding of the trends and patterns of urban growth in Asia and Africa. Furthermore, given the complexity of the urban growth process across the world, issues raised in this book will contribute to the improvement of future geospatial analysis of urban growth in the developing regions. This book is written for researchers, academicians, practitioners, and graduate students. The inclusion of the origin and brief history of each of the selected metropolitan regions, including the analysis of their urban primacy, spatiotemporal patterns of urban land use changes, driving forces of urban development, and implications for future sustainable development, makes the book an important reference for various related studies.

Geospatial Technology to Support Communities and Policy Swagata Ghosh, Maya Kumari, Varun Narayan Mishra, 2024-02-26 This book covers theoretical concepts of climate change-related phenomena, different components of geospatial technology, and application of geospatial technology on analysis of climate changes. Besides, the book will also cover different characteristics of climate resilience, how resilience relates to the adaptation and mitigation and role of geospatial science techniques and tools in building climate resilience of a society This text is suitable for researchers academicians urban planners environmentalists policy makers scientists ecologists administrators etc

Population Growth and Urban Systems Development G.A. van der Knapp,2012-12-06 The study of the evolution of an urban system raises a number of practical questions as to the operational definition of the components of the system as well as to the incorporation of the factor time in the analysis In this chapter the focus is on the urban centres the nodes of the urban system One of the first problems to be solved now is the definition of such a node It has been argued above that population size can be used as an approximation of the complexity of the spatial economic structure of a region The acceptance of this notion makes it possible to study the urban system as a population system The analysis of the population system over the study period will be pursued from this perspective The study period 1840 1970 covers completely the industrialization and urbanization phase which occurred during the industrial revolution Over this period the spatial organizational structure of society evolved from a rural commercial to wards a modern urban industrial state One of the major events in this period of change is the spatial redistribution of the population and the population growth This process will be examined below at three levels of aggregation 1 the population distribution as one frequency distribution 2 the population distribution disaggregated into a number of size classes and 3 the individual cities which make up the population distribution

Trends, Patterns and Implications of Rural-urban Migration in India, Nepal and Thailand ,1995 Resources and Environmental Management for Green Development Fengtai Zhang,Xiaowei Chuai,Lei Gao,2024-02-09 Resources are the material basis for human development while the environment is the fundamental condition for human development The exploitation and utilization of resources will lead to environmental changes which in return will have an impact on resources. At present due to the increase of population and the continuous expansion scale of human production activities how to address the trade off between resources exploitation and environment protection has become an important issue for human sustainable development. Green development is a mode of economic growth and social development that emphasizes efficiency, harmony and sustainability. It can realize the coordination and sustainability among population, economy and social development, resources and environment and is a promising means to solve the current problems associated with resources and environment.

Urbanization is a global trend. Currently about half of the world's population lives in cities. According to the latest calculations, this figure is expected to grow to 68 percent about 6.8 billion people by 2050. However, urbanization rates vary greatly from country to country and from continent to continent. Asia and Africa are the main hotspots of future urbanization, with India, China, and Nigeria alone accounting for 35 percent of urban population growth by 2050. At the same time, however, 90 percent of the world's rural population lives on these continents. Accordingly, there will      Population Index, 1992.
