Date rape drug refers to any drug that can be used to assist in the commission of a sexual assault (date rape). Drink spiking may also be undertaken for amusement purposes as well. Drugs used to facilitate rape may have sedative, hypnotic, dissociative, and/or amnesiac effects, and may be added to a food or drink without the victim's knowledge. The drugs like benzodiazepines, gamma-hydroxybutyric acid, ketamine and alcohol are common and used in most of the sexual and non sexual act of violence. These drugs are mixed in food, drinks or given in alcohol by the perpetrator before commit the crime. This article will provide some light on the informations regarding the drugs which are commonly used in sexual assaults, their pharmacology, uses & misuses and their forensic analysis.*

Introduction

In recent years the media has widely publicized incidences of sexual assault where the perpetrators have used drugs to debilitate the persons they assault. While this is not a new phenomenon, drug-facilitated sexual assault has only recently become widely recognized. Yet the most common and prevalent date rape drug, alcohol, is still not readily recognized as a tool used by perpetrators.<sup>1,2</sup> In fact, almost half of the sexual assaults that young adults experience take place under the influence of alcohol. The use of date rape drugs clearly illustrates how sexual assaults are planned and premeditated events. Perpetrators of sexual assault use date rape drugs as a method to incapacitate their victim and to ensure that she/he will not be able to resist the assault. In addition, using date rape drugs ensures that the survivor will not recall enough details about the assault to prosecute the perpetrator. The most well known date rape drug is flunitrazepam, which is more commonly known as "rohypnol," "roofies," or "the forget pill." Rohypnol's effects vary depending on the dosage that one is given, but they range from sedation to stage-4 coma (rohypnol is ten times more potent than valium). After consuming the drug, it takes 20-30 minutes before its sedative effects begin, and the effects can last from 8-24 hours. As well as being a strong sedative, it also causes short-term memory loss. Together these properties make rohypnol a dangerous date rape drug, and when it is mixed with alcohol it is even more dangerous because it can lead to severe intoxication and even death.

Gamma-hydroxybutyrate (GHB) is a fairly common drug with a variety of side effects, and thus has a wide range of users. For instance, some weightlifters use it for its muscle growth enhancing properties, some recreational drug users take it in combination with other drugs, and some individuals use it for its prosexual side effects (such as disinhibition and heightened sense of touch). It is inexpensive and easy to synthesize. GHB takes 15-20 minutes to begin having sedative effects that can last a couple of hours. High dosages can have negative side effects such as vomiting, respiratory depression,
