

In a seminal study on why graduate students exhibit poor writing abilities, (1982) concluded that graduate students are plagued with the same problems of other anxious writers: lack of confidence, poor time management, chronic procrastination, dislike writing and suffer from fear of having the writing critiqued. This investigation situated the inquiry in 2018 to explore the nature of graduate student writing anxiety in a research and scholarship class.

Holladay (1981) also researched attitudes toward writing, and concluded that teachers can help lessen writing anxiety by using different teaching strategies. Holladay summarized the following characteristics of students with writing anxiety:

1. They are frightened by a demand for writing competency
2. They fear evaluation of their writing because they think they will be rated negatively
3. They avoid writing whenever possible
4. When they are forced to write, they behave destructively

These behaviors usually result in a poorly developed writing product, which then reinforces the writing anxiety.

Dzwonkiewicz (1998) conducted a study to determine the relationship between learning style and writing anxiety among graduate students utilizing The Writing Appropriateness Test and the Productivity Environmental Preference Survey. From collected student responses, the researcher found that graduate students with the highest levels of writing anxiety lacked self-motivation, preferred structure, were peer-oriented learners, were authority-oriented learners, and did not like to undertake difficult tasks in the afternoon. Given that research methods classes tend to be highly structured, high levels of anxiety continue to persist.

Perspectives of a Graduate Department Chair

From the department chair perspective, the problem of graduate student writing deficiencies is one of long standing in the program of preparation. A graduate department chairperson, offered the following comments:

"Over the last seven years, I have witnessed the anxiety level of graduate students rise when they are required to write academic papers. During this time, I have made observations based on student papers and assignments, informal student interviews, and discussions with faculty. There are three themes I have observed: lack of academic writing skills, lack of time to access writing resources, and self-consciousness."

"We have two distinct populations of graduate students at our institution: working adults and traditional students (students who enroll in the program directly after completing their undergraduate degree). Many of the working adults have not written an academic paper in the last ten years. They are skilled at writing short notes and personal letters, but are not familiar with academic writing. The traditional student population is accustomed to multiple choice and short answer exams with a moderate focus on academic writing. Students, therefore, lack the skills needed to clearly articulate their thoughts into words and may lack deep knowledge."

"Typically, graduate students are not on campus during the day. Our students balance work, school, and family, so it is difficult for them to find the time needed to strengthen their writing skills. The campus has a writing center, but graduate students find it challenging to attend during the open hours. Finally, students seem to be self-conscious when we recommend they seek writing assistance. They are leaders in their organizations and struggle with being vulnerable."

This department continues to explore strategies for addressing writing anxiety at the graduate level and is considering how leading academic writing standards in the initial classes students take upon entry into the program.
