Regulating Families: Laws to Control People and Populations

This article discusses the impact of the one-child policy in China, including its effects on families and society. It mentions that the policy was implemented in 1979 to control the population. The article also notes that the policy has led to a significant increase in the number of people who are only children, which has created a generation of 'little emperors' who are often spoiled and have high expectations from their parents. The article also discusses the challenges of the policy, such as the gender imbalance and the aging population.
