CHAPTER 1

UNDERSTANDING HABITS

Introduction

What are habits? Habits are actions that you repeat regularly and automatically. They can be good or bad, and they can shape your life in significant ways. Understanding habits is the first step to changing them.

Why do we have habits? Habits are formed through a process called neuroplasticity, where the brain creates neural pathways that become automatic over time.

How do habits form? Habits are formed through a cycle of cue, routine, and reward. A cue triggers a routine, which leads to a reward, reinforcing the habit.

Why are habits important? Habits can make or break your success. Good habits like exercise, reading, and saving money can lead to a better life, while bad habits like procrastination, smoking, and eating junk food can lead to a worse one.

How can I change my habits? To change a habit, you need to identify the cue, the routine, and the reward. You can then replace the routine with a new one that leads to the same reward.
