

ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S GETTYSBURG ADDRESS RHETORICAL APPEAL ANALYSIS

Gettysburg Address
 On November 19, 1863, President Abraham Lincoln delivered a brief speech at the dedication ceremony in a remote cemetery in Gettysburg, Pennsylvania. Gettysburg was the location of one of the deadliest battles of the American Civil War, which had broken out on the day Lincoln gave this speech. Read the text below and answer the questions that follow.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether this nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure. We are met on a great battle-field of war, but we have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a national cemetery. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate—we cannot consecrate—we cannot hallow—the ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract. The great truth is, that these men lived and died to ensure that the people of this nation should have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

Gettysburg Address – Rhetorical Appeals
 Student responses will vary. The following are examples only.

Rhetorical Device	Quote from Text	Context How does this quote support the author's overall thesis or purpose in the text?
Ethos	Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether this nation, or any nation so conceived and so dedicated, can long endure.	Lincoln establishes his credibility as a leader by stating that he is testing the nation's ability to endure. This shows that he is a man of integrity and that he is not just a politician, but a man who is truly concerned for the future of the nation.
Pathos	But in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate—we cannot consecrate—we cannot hallow—the ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it, far above our poor power to add or detract.	Lincoln appeals to the emotions of his audience by describing the bravery of the soldiers who fought at Gettysburg. He emphasizes that the ground is sacred and that the people should honor the sacrifices of these men.
Logos	Government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.	Lincoln uses a logical argument to support his thesis. He states that the government should be run by the people, for the people, and that it should not be destroyed. This is a clear and concise statement of his belief in democracy.

In addition, Lincoln used a variety of rhetorical devices to persuade his audience. He used parallelism in the phrase "government of the people, by the people, for the people" to create a strong, memorable statement. He also used repetition, repeating the word "dedicate" throughout the speech to emphasize the importance of the occasion. Finally, Lincoln used a variety of rhetorical devices to create a sense of unity and purpose among his audience. He emphasized the shared values of the American people and the need for a new birth of freedom.

interpretation illustrates that there was no singular collective memory or national identity regarding core values. Second, as the nation and world shifted, so did the meaning of the Gettysburg Address. Well into the twentieth century, the essence of the speech was proclaimed to be its support of the democratic form of government as opposed to monarchies or other institutions. But in the middle twentieth century, that interpretation began to shift with many both abroad and at home beginning to see the speech's assertion of human equality as its focal point and most important contribution.
