account of scientific persuasion as a multimodal process and develops a simple but productive framework for analyzing and teaching multimodal argumentation. Comprising five case studies, the book provides detailed treatments of argumentation in specific technological and historical contexts: argumentation before World War I when images circulated by hand and by post; argumentation during the mid twentieth century when computers were beginning to bolster scientific inquiry but images remained hand-crafted products; and argumentation at the turn of the twenty-first century, an era of digital revolutions and digital fraud. Each study examines the rhetorical problems and strategies of specific scientists to investigate key issues regarding visualization and argument: 1. establishing new instruments as reliable sources of visual evidence; 2. creating novel arguments from reliable visual evidence; 3. creating novel arguments with unreliable visual evidence; 4. preserving the credibility of visualization practices; and 5. creating multimodal artifacts before and in the era of digital circulation. Given the growing enterprise of rhetorical studies and the field's contributions to communication practices in all disciplines, rhetoricians need a comprehensive rhetoric of science, one that accounts for the multimodal arguments that change our relation to reality. Assembling Arguments argues that such rhetoric should enable the interpretation of visual scientific arguments and improve science writing instruction.

Barron's Guide to Law Schools Barron's Educational Series, 2008-08-01. This exceptionally useful directory for aspiring law students has been brought up to date with the latest information on more than 190 ABA-approved law schools across the United States. Profiles present details on admission requirements, academic programs, the school calendar, a capsule description of the faculty, library facilities, tuition and fees, available financial aid, graduation requirements, professional organizations, and student body composition. Several non-ABA schools get brief summary profiles in a section of their own. The book also offers advice on choosing a law school, getting career counseling, taking the Law School Admission Test (LSAT) and applying to a law school. A sample LSAT with answers and explanations is a bonus feature in this directory.
