Complexity and Geographical Economics Pasquale Commendatore, Saime Kayam, Ingrid Kubin, 2015-02-17 The uneven geographical distribution of economic activities is a huge challenge worldwide and also for the European Union In Krugman's New Economic Geography economic systems have a simple spatial structure This book shows that more sophisticated models should visualise the EU as an evolving trade network with a specific topology and different aggregation levels At the highest level economic geography models give a bird eye view of spatial dynamics At a medium level institutions shape the economy and the structure of financial and labour markets At the lowest level individual decisions interact with the economic social and institutional environment the focus is on firms decision on location and innovation Such multilevel models exhibit

complex dynamic patterns path dependence cumulative causation hysteresis on a network structure and specific analytic tools are necessary for studying strategic interaction heterogeneity and nonlinearities

Causality and Probability in the Sciences Federica Russo, Jon Williamson, 2007 Causal inference is perhaps the most important form of reasoning in the sciences A panoply of disciplines ranging from epidemiology to biology from econometrics to physics make use of probability and statistics in order to infer causal relationships However the very foundations of causal inference are up in the air it is by no means clear which methods of causal inference should be used nor why they work when they do This book brings philosophers and scientists together to tackle these important questions The papers in this volume shed light on the relationship between causality and probability and the application of these concepts within the sciences

With its interdisciplinary perspective and its careful analysis Causality and Probability in the Sciences heralds the transition
